Please follow your child's doctor's advice, especially if your child has medical conditions or takes other supplements.

A gentle reminder: there is no need to aim for perfection. If you occasionally forget to give your child vitamin D, please don't be too hard on yourself. If you forget today, simply remember tomorrow—that's already a great step forward. Parenting is a long journey, and consistency matters more than perfection. Most importantly, remember to encourage yourself along the way. Happy, well-supported parents contribute greatly to their children's health and well-being.
